Ontario Aggies and State battle to 1-1 tie Saturday

The invading Ontario Aggies fought the Orange and Black soccer team to a 1-1 deadlock on our home grounds last Saturday afternoon in a game scheduled to 15 minute quarters last Saturday.

Buffalo took an early lead when Bill Cunningham headed Norwelder's corner kick past the Canadian's goalie, Ontario defender Duff out the defensive, making counting down to our territory.

The first quarter ended with the Aggies moving in on Ed Hunt and dropping him after he'd made a good save.

George Manoski replaced Hunt in the Buffalo goal and scored a two-point goal by charging out of the net to get into the goal.

Ed Hunt was back in the State goal in the second half as State took the lead for the first time since leaving their goal and scored a great goal of the first time in the kind of play.

The Aggies, looking tired by the end of the game, tried to break through the Ontario defense but failed to do so.

Martha Graham's company to offer modern dance styling

Martha Graham has been acclaimed as America's "pioneer of the dance." It was she who insisted that music should be composed for and with the dance, and that the dance should be an independent art, not an interpretation of music and other arts.

Students will have the opportunity to view Martha Graham and her dance company in the college auditorium, November 11, for a specially arranged showing.

Audio-visual office offers aid to students

Between 15-45% improvement is made in the quality of teaching through the correct use of audio-visual aids. These figures are based on research done in high schools, colleges, and the armed forces during the war according to Dr. Paul Smay, head of the audio-visual department.

College students are offered the services of the department in assisting films, film strips, and slides for use in participation classes, practice teaching assignments, and for the development of projects of a visual education nature in regular classes.

Grading with film listings are available in the Visual-aid office. Dr. Smay pointed out that it is necessary for students to place their orders at least two weeks in advance of the date the material is needed. The office is open from 3:45 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. with Miss Reilly, secretary, in charge.

Mr. Norman Truettale is associated with the department in the productive end. He is training a number of students in the making of home made film strips. Due to limited facilities, a comparatively small number of students are able to profit by this instruction.

Classes to take vote on insurance plan

A vote on the health and accident insurance issue will be called for all classes on Friday, Friday, during the 10 o'clock hour. The Student Council Committee will take this opportunity to clarify any aspect of the measure.

Students have distributed much material on the plan offered to class students. The committee suggests that the plan be discussed on the measure will be of great concern to the school.

Chairman Thomas Schell and Health Officer declared recently "It is the duty of every student on campus to vote on this program. Since the question is subject to much debate, no vote may be made without a discussion between a compulsory accident plan and a voluntary program."

At this point insurance has the backing of many factions on campus. The voting will follow these lines: Do you want a school year plan or a calendar year plan? Do you want a health plan? Do you want an accident plan or a compulsory insurance plan on a college campus?

Dean Raymond Fritz, class activity administrator, points out attendance at class meetings is compulsory and that a class check will be kept on these aspects.

Case of teachers' rights

The question of whether a school has any right to discipline teachers has been the subject of a case decided by the state supreme court in the case of State v. Smith, 1979, 100 Tex. 100, 301 S.W.2d 100, 301 S.W.2d 100, 301 S.W.2d 100.

On April 27, 1949, five teachers in the system received notice that they were being disciplined by the school board. Although the grounds for discipline ranged from six to 20 years, the board refused to give any reasons for its action. At the 20-year case, the teachers were given the right to be heard by the board or by a committee of professional incompetency or character complaints.

The case then was the basis for a lawsuit. The committee for the Defense of Democracy through Education, appointed by the National Education Association, conducted an inquiry.

After interviewing local officials, school leaders, teachers, the superintendent of schools and the board of trustees, the investigation revealed: (1) the five teachers had, with the board's knowledge, in-fracted to certain people in the community their policies of discipline in a school board election; and (2) a substantial cross-section of the community believed that the teachers' union was the cause of the disaster.

Dean Harold Benjamin, committee chairman, declared that this case is "not only an example of the gross abuse of power by a school board to deny teachers their civil rights, but also, an illustration of how such action, when coupled with a denial of teachers' professional rights, can disrupt the community and destroy the moral basis for the entire society."

The controversy in State v. Smith raises a basic problem of the proper relation of the civil rights of teachers and the ethical responsibilities of boards of education with regard to these rights. Teachers' rights to keep the needs and problems of the school before the voters cannot be seriously challenged. Boards of education are responsible not only to the public but also to the activity on the part of the teaching profession.

Booters trample Edinboro in power performance

Last Saturday afternoon the Orange and Black soccer squad swamped an invading Edinboro team by a 6-1 margin. Buffalo was definitely "up" for this contest as they spent the first quarter warming up in a pace that proved terrific in the second and third periods.

The teams fought on even terms until the first quarter when Buffalo moved up and down field until Jimmie Strickland got a 50 yard boot into the enemy camp.

Edinboro's defense was not as good as Fred Rogers' move in and kicked the ball into the enemy net.

State went on a scoring spree in the second quarter as they scored three goals in six minutes. John Hysien and Strickland scored on each day. Edinboro scored their lone goal of the game when their captain, Jimmie Strickland, got on a free kick. The half ended with the Adesmenon out.

Buffalo scored its final two goals within three minutes. In the second half when Rogers scored a beautiful shot from the edge of the field.

Edinboro's defense was not as good as Fred Rogers' move in and kicked the ball into the enemy camp.

Romance aided by Valentine

by DICK ABERNATH

Valentine's Day takes its name from a quiet, gentle prince who lived during the tyrannical and war-waged reign of Claudius, emperor of Rome. Claudius, known to his biographers for his unpopularity, discovered that married men were more popular than single men, so to combat this influence, he issued an imperial decree forbidding marriage.

The Roman youths and maidens, anguished at the decree, petitioned the emperor, pleading love and consolation—the good, pretty, Val-entineship of keeping the man who loves, the many who do feel responsible and must keep the man who loves.

So, you see, it's not just a day that few.

You think you have alcoholic woes; pity the poor animals

It seems that the lower species of life have their tribulations when it comes to "dicker." It is suggested that an Animals Anonymous be formed to aid these poor creatures when they get "hazarded."

COWS—When his cows continued coming in from pasture and found that they had to be milking down, a farmer near Van Nuys, N. C. called in a supervisor of the local cow-vaccinating station. The supervisor said that the cows had eaten fallen apples which had fermented.

Pigs—In Tulsa, Okla., sheriff's deputies watched a drunken pig splash down the street. They followed it straight to the front of a still.

MOUSE—In California, Th. A. police station custodian found a mouse vomiting happily in a nearly empty whisky bottle. The rodent had grown so big from its solitary after crawling in. It could not get out of the bottle. When the custodian broke the bottle to release the mouse, it tried to escape, but collapsed in a drunken stupor.

DUCKS—Citizens of Wheeling, N. Y. observed dozens of tame ducks staggering about the streets and causing difficulty. It was all the result of an accident—a beer truck had crashed and the ducks had received their first taste of the intoxicating beverage out of the broken bottles.

BEARS—In the Tennessee hills there lives a bear which seems to know why whiskey when he tastes it. He is known as Almond. The local agents were waiting to trap the bear, but he refused to be taken. He found the bear hibernated out of the forest and decided to sample the product. He ate it with an air of approval. Then he returned to the forest. Their evidence destroyed, the revenue men went home.

BATS—An outcasteer in Berkeley, Calif., announced his remarkable success in trapping the bats by feeding them from pudding flavored with whisky. He gets the bats to drink and he can get them with his bare hands, he says. (Courtesy of New York Times).

Tour accomplishes objectives: informed but tired students

In specially equipped busses, a band of State students and faculty last week toured the Niagara Frontier area. With Dr. Marvin Rapp and Mr. John Vernon handling the loudspeaker systems rigged up in the busses, over 70 people set out to get first hand experience and information about this historic frontier.

New song book ready for sale

A new Song Book is being sponsored by the Student Council. A selection of the ten best songs that have been written by our State students mostly for Inter-State Sing, make up the book. The book contains twenty slides, with a picture of the main building on the front cover. The editing has been done by Silas J. Boyd. Over the years, the indisposition of a Song Book has been a serious handicap to classes releasing for Inter-State Sing. Now it will be convenient for every student and alumna to purchase a Song Book for $30. This will be a convenient one for alumni gatherings as well as for student high sing weeks. It will be held from time to time during the school year.

Three thousand books are being published, so there are enough for all.

We are counting on your support to make this endeavor a success. They will be sold in the Student Center from 11:00 to 11:00 the week of May 21 to June 2 by Student Council. You cannot afford to sit out on owning your own Song Book.

Alumni, please contact Diane Lebeaux, Student Council Committee Chairman.

IA graduates find grades positions

It is a well known fact that job placements in the Industrial Arts department is at one of the lowest rates in years.

Nevertheless, many men who graduate from this phase of education, are finding the elementary field a very fascinating one.

Among those who have been placed recently in the lower grades are: Frederick Laird, Grade 7; Napier, N. Y.; Harold Shapard, special education; Edna, N. Y.; Francis Griffin, grade 8, Buffalo; George Mazzoni, grade 7 math and social studies, Belmont, N. Y.; Robert McLaughlin, special education; Lockport; Joseph Marinelli, special education; Walter Fywick, grade 8, Perry, N. Y.; and Edwin Christman, junior high school math, science and driver education, Holland, N. Y.

It can be done, fellows.

Unflattering stereotype is description given to profs

It is revealing, but a little distressing, to find that both men and women teachers appear pretty generally as stereotypes—and rather unflattering stereotypes. So states Don C. Charles who made a survey of more than 60 representative American writers from Colonial times to the Present.

Mr. Charles found that a remarkably small number of references to teachers was made. The paucity of reference suggests the insignificance of teachers—as individuals or as professional workers—in the eyes of writers. A reading of contemporary literature does not reveal any stereotypes, teachers, or teachers of any kind; they simply do not appear in any post World War II works read.

The stereotype women teachers seldom appear as significant individuals. They fall generally into two classes: (1) The "sweet young thing," involved in affairs of the heart, teaching until one of them says off in a marriage offer, (2) The old maid, a comic character who has been satirized on most of the high school auditoriums stages in America. She is the widow of the black, shrewish, and likely to be a shrewish fool in the presence of a man.

The satirization of men as individuals is as marked, the stereotype as rigid. The types again are two, one subdivided: (1) The old hick—old disciplinarian, likely to be a fool, always odd, looking usually a bachelor. (2) The smart, bookish, young fellow who is (a) An intellectual fool, or (b) A pretty clever fellow who one day ahead of the boys by his wit. This is necessary, because the "manly" enough to succeed for force of personality or leadership.

Exceptions to these stereotypes do exist; there are occasional good teachers and successful human beings like Agnes Denning. Import and writers of significant works may have been overlooked or references missed, but the teacher in American literature appears generally to be a rather unflattering stereotype.
